American Board of Comprehensive Care Certification Examination
Policies and Procedures Regarding Indeterminate Scores

Introduction

The American Board of Comprehensive Care (ABCC) Certification Examination provides a common evaluation system for candidates who hold the Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) degree, are certified as Advanced Practice Registered Nurses (APRN) in the United States, and seek certification in comprehensive care.

This is a voluntary examination and currently does not affect scope of practice in any state. The following policies and procedures regarding indeterminate scores are intended to assure the validity of reported scores.

Policies and procedures regarding suspected irregular behavior, which may or may not affect score validity, are described in another document, entitled American Board of Comprehensive Care (ABCC) Policies and Procedures Regarding Irregular Behavior.

A. Policies

1. Indeterminate scores are passing level examination results that cannot be certified as representing a valid measure of an examinee's competence in the domains assessed by the examination. Aberrancy(ies) in performance for which there is no reasonable and satisfactory explanation resulting in passing scores being classified as indeterminate.

2. Statistical procedures will be applied routinely, as well as in response to particular information, to identify scores that may be subsequently classified as indeterminate. Scores identified for potential classification as indeterminate may result from factors such as examinee illness during part of an examination, irregular behavior, or other factors. Classification of scores as indeterminate does not necessarily imply any inappropriate behavior by an examinee. Irregular behavior is not the only basis upon which scores may be invalidated.

3. The Examination Committee will refer an examinee's scores to the Appeals Committee if the Examination Committee finds that they cannot certify a score as representing a valid measure of the examinee's competence in the domains assessed by the examination. Follow up action will be performed by the Appeals Committee and reported to the Examination Committee and the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the ABCC.

4. If otherwise eligible, an examinee whose scores have been declared indeterminate by the Appeals Committee may take an examination, within a specified period of time, to validate the performance on the examination in question, unless the Appeals Committee finds that irregular behavior occurred and the examinee is barred from future administrations of the ABCC examination.
5. If the Appeals Committee makes a decision to classify scores as indeterminate, an annotation to that effect will be entered on the ABCC record of the examinee and will appear on ABCC transcripts for examinees. Information regarding the decision of the Appeals Committee will be provided with transcripts and, upon request, to legitimately interested entities in accordance with the procedures on indeterminate scores.

B. Procedures

1. These procedures are applicable to instances in which:

   a) The results of appropriate statistical analyses identify an aberrancy(ies) in performance, i.e., indicate that a score does not or may not represent a reasonable assessment of an examinee's knowledge or competence sampled by the examination. Such statistical analyses include, but are not limited to, analyses which (i) indicate that the pattern of scores for a given examinee is markedly nonuniform and one or more section scores for the examinee is below the passing level; (ii) indicate that the current scores for a given examinee show an unexpectedly large increase over the examinee's most recent prior scores on the same exam; or (iii) indicate that the degree of agreement that is observed between the wrong answers given by two examinees is unusually high as compared with the degree of agreement that would be expected to occur between two randomly selected individuals drawn from a comparison group of examinees; and

   b) There is no evidence of errors in scoring; and

   c) There is insufficient evidence available to conclude that the examinee's scores were distorted downward by factors under the control of the test administration entities; and

   d) The examinee's total score on the current examination is at or above the passing level.

2. In such instances, Appeals Committee will review any additional information available from examination records that may be helpful in explaining the aberrancy(ies) in performance and, if indicated and feasible, will conduct further investigation.

   a) For example, in the context of nonuniformity of performance, such further investigation might include, e.g., review of responses to determine whether large numbers of questions were omitted or answered randomly; review of test center administration reports to ascertain whether variation in testing conditions had occurred during the test; and review of any information obtained before or after the examination that might be relevant to his or her performance on the test.

   b) For example, in the context of an unexpectedly large increase over the examinee’s most recent prior score, such further investigation might include review of the examinee's record to ascertain whether the examination was taken on multiple prior occasions and, if so, whether the examinee's score on one or more earlier attempts was higher than the examinee's score on the most recent previous examination.

c) Appeals Committee will review the results of such investigation to determine whether a clearly reasonable and satisfactory explanation for the results of the statistical analyses has been obtained.

d) When indicated and feasible, Appeals Committee will conduct, or arrange for the conduct of, additional analyses. Such analyses might include, for example, a handwriting analysis to ascertain whether impersonation might be a possible explanation for the aberrancy(ies) in performance observed. Such additional analyses might also include further statistical analyses.

If such investigation and/or analyses produce non-statistical evidence of irregular behavior on the part of the examinee, ABCC Policies and Procedures Regarding Irregular Behavior will be invoked. Without non-statistical evidence of irregular behavior, the results of statistical analyses will not be used as the basis for referring a matter for further action under the policies and procedures for irregular behavior.

3. If such investigation will not be concluded until after the typical period for the reporting of scores, the examinee and any other party to which scores would normally be reported will be notified that the reporting of scores in question is being delayed pending further review and/or analysis.

4. If such investigation discloses an explanation for the aberrancy(ies) in performance, which explanation, in the judgment of staff, is clearly reasonable and satisfactory, staff will report the examinee's scores and no further action will be taken pursuant to these Procedures.

5. If, at the conclusion of such investigation and the analysis of all available information, Appeals Committee finds that a clearly reasonable and satisfactory explanation for the aberrancy(ies) in performance has not been disclosed, they will recommend the scores be withheld, if not already released, for the examinee in question, and the evidence will be referred to the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the ABCC. Evidence regarding each examinee with an aberrancy(ies) in performance identified by the statistical procedures referenced above or otherwise is referred to the Executive Committee, if the evidence provides a reasonable basis to question the validity of the scores. Using the examinee’s last known address, the examinee involved will be notified of the basis for questioning the validity of scores and will be given the opportunity to submit information for presentation to the Appeals Committee.

6. Appeals Committee will notify the examinee of the withholding of scores and will provide the examinee with a description of any statistical analyses employed. The examinee will be provided with a copy of the applicable ABCC policies and procedures and will be given an opportunity to provide an explanation for the findings that have been obtained and/or to present information relevant to the assessment of the validity of the scores. The examinee may request the opportunity to appear personally before the Appeals Committee. In instances in which the examinee involved appears personally before the Appeals Committee, an audio recording may be made of that portion of the proceedings during which the examinee is in attendance.

6. All pertinent information, including a description of any statistical analyses employed and any explanation of other information that the examinee may provide, will be presented to the Appeals Committee which is authorized to make a determination regarding the validity of the scores in question.

7. In instances involving suspected irregular behavior which raise concerns about the validity of scores, the Appeals Committee will follow the ABCC Procedures Regarding Irregular Behavior, and may consider evidence regarding irregular behavior and indeterminate scores jointly.

8. If, on the basis of the information presented to it, the Appeals Committee is convinced that a reasonable and satisfactory explanation for the aberrancy(ies) in performance has been obtained, it will direct Examination Committee to report the examinee's scores and associated passing grade.

9. If, on the basis of the information presented to it, the Appeals Committee is not convinced that a reasonable and satisfactory explanation for the aberrancy(ies) in performance has been obtained, it will classify the examinee's scores as indeterminate and will so advise the examinee.

10. Examinees whose scores have been classified as indeterminate and who have not been barred from the ABCC certification examination may elect to take a validating examination.

   If the total test score that is obtained on the validating examination is at or above the passing level, the examinee's original scores and associated passing grade will be reported, and no record of the validating examination or annotation will appear on the examinee's transcript. If the total test score that is obtained on the validating examination is below the passing level, the examinee's original scores will not be reported. Scores obtained on the validating examination will not be reported, nor will there be a record of the validating examination.

   If the validating examination is not taken or if the validating examination is taken and not passed, an annotation indicating indeterminate score will remain on the examinee’s record and transcript, and information regarding the decision of the Appeals Committee and the basis for such decision will be provided with transcripts and to legitimately interested entities upon request.

11. If there is non-statistical evidence of irregular behavior on the part of the examinee, the Appeals Committee will follow the ABCC Procedures Regarding Irregular Behavior.

12. Provided that the examinee has not yet taken the validating examination, a decision of the Appeals Committee may be appealed to the Executive Committee of the ABCC Board of Directors if the examinee involved has a reasonable basis to believe that the Appeals Committee did not act in compliance with applicable ABCC policies and/or procedures.
or that the decision of Appeals Committee was clearly contrary to the weight of the evidence before it. The request for such an appeal must be received within 30 days of the date on which the notification advising the examinee of the Appeals Committee’s decision was mailed to the examinee.

Notice that the matter is the subject of an appeal will be included with the ABCC transcripts during the pendency of such appeal. A written record, consisting of all information available to the Executive Committee, the records of the Appeals Committee's meeting, a transcript of the recording made during the examinee's appearance before the Appeals Committee (if there was such an appearance), and the basis for appeal set forth by the examinee, will be reviewed by the Executive Committee of the ABCC Board of Directors.

If the Executive Committee determines that the Appeals Committee did not act in compliance with applicable ABCC policies and procedures and/or that the decision of the Appeals Committee was clearly contrary to the weight of the evidence, the Executive Committee ABCC may reverse the decision of the Appeals Committee. If the Executive Committee reverses the decision of the Appeals Committee to classify the examinee’s scores as indeterminate, all entities having received ABCC transcripts indicating indeterminate score will be notified of the decision of the ABCC and provided with updated transcripts. Otherwise, the determination of the Appeals Committee will stand.
